

View of the rear side of the site. The crops where the end compost product will be applied can be seen at the back